Dear Jack:

My case to see you is still in the courts, unsettled. Looks like it may drag on. Meanwhile, would you once more be willing to look at some of my manuscript and comment on it? Don't hear much from Jerry anymore. He used to call me once a week. But my book is going along very well, slower than I would like, but it is turning out to be the kind of book I wanted to write in the first place. My editor is ahppy with it and not too worried a out the time that has passed.

Sincerely,

Al
